

Reasons for joining this 4-part session

- You may have taken music lessons many years ago, usually on piano, but now want to try again.
- Someone in your family is taking up or is playing an instrument, and you want to join in the fun.
- You want to take part in the various music jams going on.
- You want to be in a group of learners where each person brings something of their past into the conversation.
- You trust someone who was trained as a classical pianist but played popular songs with other musicians, and so knows all the ways people learn music and can combine the best of each strategy.
